County Jail. Perry was held in jail for almost three weeks pending extradition to Michigan, but a rendition notice from Mississippi's governor has not arrived here ordering the action. (Staff photo by Wayne Ducomb Jr.)

Board views hiring CPA to check activity funds

By BRENT MACEY
The Hancock County School Board today voted to hire a Certified Public Accountant (CPA) to check all Student Activity Fund accounts in the school district.

Although board members agreed that the work should be done, Board President Marvin Cuyas stated he thought the board should "shop around" some before hiring the specific person.

Sills had recommended hiring CPA Charles B. Benvinetti.

The superintendent stated some $2,500 is budgeted for the job.

In determining seniority the following criteria will be used: Years of service in the Hancock School district; length of current assignment in the district; number of years of teaching experience in area of certification; total number of years teaching; and low pupil-teacher ratio in present assignment.

The policy also discusses the case of teachers hired under special programs that have no funding available. Also the policy notes, "if further reductions are necessary, reduction of full time staff coordinators, supervisors, and other employees shall be considered."

Bay youths arrested in heists

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
Five Bay St. Louis youths are in custody of the Hancock County Youth Court in connection with several recent burglaries and vandalism incidents in the city.

Chief Douglas Williams of the Bay Police Department Friday reported the five boys were spotted recently by patrolmen at the Bay Car Wash near the intersection of Main Street and US-90.

Williams said one of the youths was observed carrying bolt cutters and a crowbar and the boys began running from the scene.

The other four youths apparently cut off locks at the car wash from several coin-operated spraying machines from which money was collected.

The investigation led to the arrests and apparently solved numerous

Exclusive interview reported

Bond reduction results in Joe Perry's release

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
A White Cypress Community resident was released Friday afternoon from Hancock County Jail in Bay St. Louis after paying a $1,500 cash bond set by court order earlier that day.

Joseph W. Perry, 48, of Route 1, Box 325-C, Pass Christian was in jail about four weeks after his June 7 arrest at Stennis International Airport by a host of heavily-armed local, state and federal law enforcement agents.

The law enforcement officials arrested Perry based on a National Crime Information Network bulletin which reported he was wanted in connection with a 1977 robbery of a Michigan Secretary of State branch office in Birmingham.

In an exclusive interview Friday just after his release, Perry and attorney Henry Cook III of the Bay St. Louis law firm of Cook, Tucker and Sharp countered statements by various law enforcement officials, recounted events of the last few weeks and revealed what is in store for in the immediate future.

Cook said Place One Circuit Court Judge Leslie Grant in Biloxi at about 10 a.m. granted a hearing to attorney Jane Sharp who also represents Perry.

At the hearing Grant considered Sharp's motion for a reduction of Perry's bond to $1,000 cash. The judge reduced bond to $1,500 cash which was paid later at the Hancock County Circuit Clerk's office for Perry's release, Cook reported.

In addition, Cook exhibited a document which states Grant accepted a writ from Sharp directing Hancock Sheriff Ronald Peterson to cease and desist interfering with Perry's efforts to make bond and further directs the sheriff to render his cooperation with the White Cypress resident's efforts to post bond.

Place Two Circuit Court Judge J. Ruble Griffin had previously set initial bond at $100,000, ordered release of Perry's personal belongings and reduced bond just about each week at the attorneys' request.

Since Perry refused to waive extradition, Mississippi law requires he be held not more than 30 days and bond must be set allowing release from jail.

Cook said Griffin did not preside at the Friday bond reduction hearing because the judge said he did not have time to hear the case. So the attorney contacted Grant who allowed a hearing. Cook said Perry is now free on bond until he is ordered to appear in court on a charge of possession of less than one ounce of marijuana or if Michigan issues a warrant for his arrest.

"To date no extradition proceedings have been issued for Perry,"

A Michigan district attorney must initiate extradition proceedings by a request to that state's governor who in turn issues a formal request to Mississippi's governor who then notifies the sheriff's department with a rendition notice to extradite Perry.

When asked if he was involved in the Michigan burglary, Perry replied,

Handi Bank robbed Friday

By ELLIS CUEVAS
Two armed men robbed two computer maintenance men at the Hancock Bank's US-90 branch in Bay St. Louis near midnight Friday according to Police Chief Douglas Williams.

Williams said, "At approximately 11 p.m. Friday, as two computer maintenance men were leaving Hancock Bank's US-90 branch, two men forced them back into the building. They then tied their hands, feet, eyes and mouth with tape and robbed them of $55 cash."

"While the maintenance men were tied-up in another part of the building, the two men with stockings over their faces apparently opened the Handi Bank and took an undetermined amount of cash," Williams added.

Police think the robbers apparently jammed the Handi Bank and waited for the maintenance men.

Late Saturday Williams reported the FBI has been notified of the robbery and auditors were trying to determine the amount of money taken from the handi bank.

Bay patrolmen answering the call included Barbara Ellspermann, Murray Ladner, Michael Hobby, Wilbert Dorsey, Brenda Anderson, and Ben Palmer. Alvin Ladner, Hancock Investigator is assisting in the case.

GAMBLING RAID IN BAY
Bay St. Louis Police raided a Sycamore and St. Francis Street Club Friday night for alleged gambling activities making 15 arrests according to Police Chief Douglas Williams.

Williams said, "A tip was received at 10 p.m. Friday reporting gambling activities taking place at Bobby's Lounge at the corner of St. Francis and Sycamore Streets. Police confiscated several sets of personalized dice and $47 in cash."

US-90 wreck injuries claim New Orleans man

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.
A New Orleans man died at Hancock General Hospital in Bay St. Louis at about 8 p.m. Wednesday night while receiving emergency room treatment for injuries suffered in a three-vehicle accident on US-90 earlier that day.

Eugene F. Pratt, 63, was on life support equipment and reported in grave condition throughout the afternoon and evening. Assistant Chief Brenda Anderson of the Bay Police Department noted Friday.

Hancock County Coroner Carl Banderet of Bay St. Louis Friday said alcohol blood tests indicate Pratt had consumed an excessive amount of alcohol just prior to the accident.

Pratt was driving his stationwagon west on the highway at an undetermined high rate of speed, apparently ran a red light and struck a pickup truck driven by Burton (Fip) Johnson of Bay St. Louis at the Dunbar Avenue intersection, Anderson said.

Pratt's vehicle side-swiped the front of Johnson's pickup, traveled about 300 west on US-90, crossed the median knocking over a large shrub and struck the rear quarterpanel of a third car in the eastbound lanes operated by Loretta Burns of Bay St. Louis, the assistant chief noted.

Pratt was removed from his crushed stationwagon by Mobile Medic emergency medical technicians and Bay Fire Department personnel utilizing the Jaws of Life.

Johnson, Burns and Johnson's passenger, Henry Prevou of Bay St. Louis, all apparently escaped injury in the mishap.

Construction accident injures Bay workman

By BRENT MACEY
A construction worker for Crown Equipment Company in Bay St. Louis was listed in guarded condition Friday in Hancock General Hospital after being injured while working at the Bay Cove Marina Village Townhouse development.

Johnny Bufkin, 29, of Bay St. Louis was apparently injured while working on a piece of heavy equipment at approximately 10:25 a.m.

Ann Penegney, lieutenant of the Bay St. Louis Fire Department, stated she thought Bufkin was welding under the front end of a bulldozer when the blade of the vehicle fell on top of him.

She stated she thought the blade struck Bufkin's back.

Penegney noted a Mobile Medic unit was on the scene when fire department personnel arrived. Bufkin was transported by Mobile Medic to Hancock General.

What to eat challenges new college student

A nutrition specialist says one of the toughest challenges college students must face in adapting to college life is making the decision on what to eat.

"Daily cafeteria-style eating may be a new experience and can present problems if foods aren't carefully chosen," says Mrs. Barbara McLaurin, a food and nutrition specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

"Many students find themselves gradually adding extra pounds as they eat regularly at the cafeteria and load their trays with an assortment of randomly selected foods and rich desserts," Mrs. McLaurin says. She says lack of money and time causes them to select high-calorie, high-fat foods. The nutrition specialist says they may find themselves eating only low-nutrient foods such as chips, doughnuts, pastries, soft drinks and candy.

Mrs. McLaurin offers a list of potential problems with food choices a college student might have along with some solutions. Her guide to better eating on campus includes:

Problem Situation One—Cafeteria lines have an assortment of foods that confuse the student, who has little knowledge about what a balanced diet should be.

Mrs. McLaurin says the student could select a large number of starchy foods, such as vegetables, noodles, cereals, breads and desserts for each meal.

"The result can be extra pounds and digestive problems," she says. "It is important to select fresh raw fruits and vegetables to give bulk and fiber and aid in digestion. Choices for whole grain breads and cereals also add fiber to the diet."

The nutrition specialist says an adequate, balanced diet comes from a variety of foods and from four basic food groups.

"Students should select four servings of fruits and vegetables, four servings of milk or dairy products, two servings of meat, fish, poultry or beans and four servings of whole-grain or enriched breads and cereals. Other foods will add calories and few nutrients."

Problem Situation Two—Fried foods and those with sauces or gravies are likely to be the ones with the most calories and fruits in heavy syrup add calories, too.

"If watching calories, select those foods which are simply prepared such as meats without gravies and vegetables without sauces," Mrs. McLaurin says.

"Casseroles also may be higher in calories even though they are nutritious."

"A fresh vegetable salad alone may have few calories, but when salad dressing is added, the calories may double."

Mrs. McLaurin says vinegar and/or lemon juices makes a lower calorie addition to salads. She says gelatin desserts may appear light, but they mainly add calories and few nutrients.

"Ice cream and milk puddings are more nutritious, or a fruit salad would be a good choice," she says.

Problem Situation Three—Breakfast is the meal that the college student is most likely to pass up.

"If it's impossible to have a hot breakfast, a granola bar or another quick, nutritious food would be better than nothing," Mrs. McLaurin says.

She says breakfast ideally should include a protein food, a source of vitamin C, such as fruit juice or fresh fruit, a bread or cereal and a glass of milk.

"Students need to remember that a source of vitamin C is needed every day," she says.

Problem Situation Four—After hours and weekend eating out.

"Pizza, hamburgers, fries and ice cream are favorites," Mrs. McLaurin says. "They may be nutritious, but also are high in calories and can add pounds if college students eat them too often."

"The average hamburger, fries and soft drink meal can add 800 to 1,200 calories. This may be more than one-half of a college girl's calorie allowance."

Mrs. McLaurin says these foods don't have to be eliminated from the diet, but they need to be worked into a total daily food plan which allows for essential calories and necessary nutrients.

Problem Situation Five—In-the-dorm snacks.

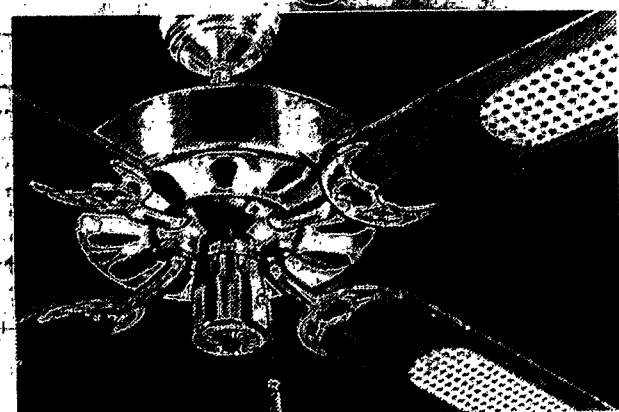

"Precautions should be taken to choose foods that are nutritious as well as appetizing," Mrs. McLaurin says. "Peanut butter or cheese and crackers would be more nutritious than potato chips that provide 114 calories for every 10 chips."

Mrs. McLaurin says cottage cheese or yogurt with a piece of fresh fruit would make an excellent weekend lunch and provide fewer calories and better nutrients than vending machine choices of cookies, pastry or cake rolls.

She says granola type cereal and canned juice also makes a good mini-meal for weekend eating.

"The cereal can be kept in an airtight container in the dorm room and is a good source of fiber. The treat also can satisfy the sweet tooth," she says.

Bits 'n pieces

The July 4th weekend is coming to a fast close with several big activities still underway in our area.

The Mississippi Deep Sea Rodeo is still underway today with many local fishermen competing for the big prizes.

At 2 p.m. this afternoon, the Annual Blessing of the Fleet will be held in Hancock County at Bayou Caddy.

The event is co-sponsored by the Fishermen's Association and the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce.

We hope many folks will drive to the end of the seawall at the end of the road at Bayou Caddy for the blessing of the fleet.

It is really hard to tell just how much benefits the Mississippi Gulf Coast receives from the publicity generated by the Miss USA contest.

We have noted in recent weeks many cars with Arkansas tags, and we are sure many of them are because their contestant was selected as Miss USA for 1982.

The exposure to the nation on National TV will probably continue to pay dividends for many years to come.

We noted a vehicle from out-of-state the other day trying to figure out the broken traffic signal at Main Street and Beach Boulevard in Bay St. Louis.

We have had many residents complain about the condition of the light for some years now.

We feel it should be fixed or taken down completely. Motorists familiar with the area know there is only a caution for Beach Boulevard, but, visitors are unaware of what the light is all about.

One of these days there is going to be a bad accident because of the broken signal light.

We hope everyone will have a very happy and safe July 4th.

Coolidge succeeded Lincoln as most notable interpreter of Declaration

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article entitled "July 4, 1982: The 110th Anniversary of Calvin Coolidge's Birth" by Harry V. Jaffa, research professor of political philosophy at Claremont McKenna College and Claremont Graduate School in Claremont, Calif., author of a number of books, including "Crisis of the House Divided: An Interpretation of the Lincoln-Douglas Debates," and "How to Think about the American Revolution" and widely acknowledged as one of the country's leading students of Abraham Lincoln and of the Declaration of Independence, is furnished to The Sea Coast Echo by Public Research, Syndicated in Claremont.

When President Reagan entered the White House, he rearranged the portraits in the Cabinet Room, replacing Thomas Jefferson's with Calvin Coolidge's. But I think Calvin Coolidge would have been more honored if his portrait had been side by side with that of the author of the Declaration of Independence.

Coolidge, the 110th anniversary of whose birth falls on Independence Day, 1982, is the only president of the United States to have been born on the Fourth of July. This is something seldom remembered, and one wonders whether President Reagan remembered it.

Abraham Lincoln once remarked that "The principles of Jefferson are the definitions and axioms of free society."

And, in a speech delivered in Independence Hall, in February of 1861, on his way to his inauguration as sixteenth president of the United States, Lincoln said "that all the political sentiments I entertain have been drawn... from the sentiments which originated and were given to the world from this hall. I have never had a feeling politically that did not spring from the sentiments embodied in the Declaration of Independence."

Calvin Coolidge might have said the same thing, as he is the most notable interpreter of the Declaration since Abraham Lincoln.

Indeed Calvin Coolidge's first notable achievement as a young man was when, as a senior at Amherst, he won the gold medal in a nationwide contest for the best essay on the causes of the American Revolution.

This essay still merits study today, for in it we see the beginning of a life-long devotion to the articulation and understanding of what he termed "the seasoned and established principles which have made our country the greatest among the nations of the earth."

It can be regarded as an act of Providence that the child, born on the Fourth of July, 1872 whose prize essay on the American Revolution in 1895 first brought him distinction, should have been president of the United States in 1926, when the nation observed its 150th anniversary.

It is a badge of our shame that, in 1976, no one in authority seems to have noted what Coolidge had said a half century earlier.

This is all the more regrettable, when one contemplates the poverty of the speeches and addresses of our 20th anniversary.

The center of the nation's attention was absorbed in the televised sailing of the tall ships into New York harbor. However beautiful was this reminder of the age of sail, no one doubted that that age had been superseded forever.

If the Declaration of Independence was remembered with nostalgic fondness, it was because it was remembered as if it had been a tall ship.

Coolidge's speech in Independence Hall, July 5, 1926 was entitled "The Inspiration of the Declaration of Independence." It was a profound exploration of the historical and philosophical meaning of that famous document.

Coolidge never doubted for a moment that the importance of American Independence was to be found in the principles by which that independence was originally justified.

"It was not because it was proposed to establish a new nation, but because it was proposed to establish a nation on new principles, that July 4, 1776 has come to be regarded as one of the greatest days in history."

The truths expressed in the Declaration, he said, were very old. But never before had they been adopted by a duly authorized and constituted representative body, a body supported by general public opinion, and my armies in the field.

It was this uniting of philosophical thought with political action that made the Declaration of Independence "the most important civil document in the world."

Near the end of his oration, Coolidge remarked that there was, about the Declaration, "a finality that is exceedingly restful."

The assertions of man's equality, of his endowment with inalienable rights, of the derivation of the just powers of government from the consent of the governed, are all, he insisted, final.

"No advance, no progress, can be made beyond these propositions." Anyone wishing to deny them, he continued, can only go backward. And those who wish to proceed in such a direction "are reactionary."

Coolidge spoke in the heyday of the so-called "Progressive era."

The idea that a final political truth might be pronounced at any time was wholly inconsistent with the evolutionary, historicist, and relativist theories that dominated the world—as they still dominate our own. But Coolidge was wiser than the "intellectuals" of the academy and the media of his day.

Although at the time of the sesqui-centennial, Coolidge spoke in the midst of unprecedented prosperity, he reminded his countrymen that the cause of that prosperity was the Declaration of Independence, the principles of which were the foundation of the nation.

On an occasion when there was a general feeling of optimism and confidence in the future of the nation, Coolidge reminded his countrymen that the cause of that prosperity was the Declaration of Independence, the principles of which were the foundation of the nation.

INDEPENDENCE DAY

The signing of the Declaration of Independence on July 4, 1776, gave birth to the United States as a sovereign nation and affirmed our commitment to individual liberty.

This eloquent document was, in the words of Thomas Jefferson, the "gentle effusion of the soul of our country," and, indeed, it truly expressed the American ideal of the dignity and rights of man. From that time on, the pages of our history have been indelibly inscribed with the Enlightenment tenet that government derives its power from the consent of the governed and that each individual possesses certain unalienable rights.

Today, more than two centuries after its adoption, the Declaration of Independence continues to provide intellectual and spiritual inspiration to people everywhere.

While walking through the streets of Philadelphia on the first anniversary of the signing of the Declaration, John Adams noticed that many citizens had placed lighted candles in their windows. "It was the most splendid illumination I ever saw," he wrote.

On this Fourth of July, as we commemorate the 206th anniversary of our Independence and reflect on the blessings of liberty, let us fervently pray that God will always guide our efforts to preserve that "splendid illumination" for ourselves, our posterity, and freedom-loving people around the globe.

INDEPENDENCE AND THE FLAG

The Fourth of July is a time outdoors with your family. It's a day off, hot dogs, and the grill, and maybe Southern fried chicken, and potato salad.

Americans like to celebrate the day of independence with a lot of good food, family, friends and fellowship, and there is a great deal to celebrate.

As we approach July 4, 1982, there are some troubling signs that the spirit of individual patriotism is not what it once was. I really don't think Americans are any less patriotic, but maybe we just show it differently these days.

I base my judgment on word I received recently from the editor of the Poplarville Democrat, Billy Rose. He said he went looking to buy an American flag, but couldn't find one at any of the stores in the local community.

He said he thought it was a sad state of affairs that an individual couldn't even buy an American flag in his own local community, perhaps because the demand just isn't there.

The flag is a key element in our celebration of independence, and flags may be purchased through my congressional office at a reasonable cost.

This holiday period offers a good chance to show how the story of the origin of our flag parallels the story of the origin of our country. The pattern of the stars and stripes, in fact, was not an automatic selection.

But stars and stripes have been used in flags of various countries since ancient times. The star is a symbol of the heavens and the divine goal to which man aspires. The stripe is symbolic of the rays of light emanating from the sun, so it was natural that colonists turned to these symbols to represent their young country.

The Continental Congress passed a resolution that established the Stars and Stripes in 1777, but did not specify the arrangement of the 13 stars on the blue background. Some flags had the stars in a circle, some in rows, and some scattered without any apparent design.

In 1794, after the admission of Kentucky and Vermont, a resolution was adopted making the flag one of 15 stars and 15 stripes. But it became obvious that adding a strip for each new state would spoil the true design of the flag.

The American flag today is a proud symbol of liberty and there is no better time of the year to show it than the Fourth of July. In my opinion, the flag should be displayed constantly as a reminder of the cost of liberty, the privilege of living in America and the real meaning of Independence Day.

St. Clare nuptials unite DeHaan, Clark

St. Clare Catholic Church in Waveland was the setting for the June 5 wedding of Kim Marie Clark and Keith Anthony DeHaan. The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Clinton Clark of Waveland. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Fred DeHaan Jr. also of Waveland.

Rev. John Scanlon celebrated a Nuptial Mass and officiated at the 2 p.m. double ring ceremony.

Three large baskets of spring flowers decorated the sanctuary of the church.

Musical selections were provided by Mrs. Mildred Means of Waveland.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white organza fashioned with Queen Anne neckline and fitted bodice accented by imported lace and pearls, and bishop sleeves. The bouffant skirt featured tiers of banded chantilly lace and swept to a chapel length train. Her fingertip veil of illusion fell from a Juliet cap of venise lace and pearls.

She carried a cascade of silk carnations and white daisies with pink forget-me-nots and baby's breath.

Connie Clark of Waveland attended her sister as maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Kristine Clark of Waveland, sister of the bride; Barbara Boyd and Bara Brady of Bay St. Louis; Jim Necaise of Kiln; and Charmaine DeHaan, sister of the groom, and Scherell Necaise of Waveland.

The attendants wore formal gowns of rainbow satin fashioned with gored skirts, fitted bodice with sweetheart neckline, and short puffed sleeves.

They carried spring bouquets of rainbow colored daisies accented the colors of their dresses, interspersed with baby's breath. Hairpieces of daisies and baby's breath also complemented the dresses.

Miss Heddi Peterson of Waveland was flower girl.

Jimmy Necaise of Waveland served as best man. Groomsman were Edward Cook, Michael Haverly, cousin of the groom; David Yarborough Jr., Keith Herridon, and Kevin DeHaan, brother of the groom, all of Waveland; and Pat Williams of Lakeshore.

Ushers were Tim Delcuze of Clermont Harbor; Mark Haverly, cousin of the groom, and Ricky Bourgeois of Waveland.

The mother of the bride chose for the occasion a pale lavender formal gown featuring chiffon jacket with sleeve and hemline ruffle. The groom's mother was attired in a formal gown of an aqua knit with a chiffon pleated overlay.

A reception followed the ceremony at the American Legion Hall in Waveland, where spring flowers in rainbow colors decorated throughout.

Assisting were Aline and Elaine LaFontaine.

For traveling, the bride chose a navy dress with V-neckline and ruffled bodice with navy accessories. A corsage of white daisies and navy forget-me-nots with baby's breath completed her ensemble.

The couple will reside in Waveland.

Life is shambles

Q. My husband died 14 years ago, at age 49. He had an inoperable brain tumor, so it was a very traumatic situation. Despite the fact that I have three wonderful sons, my life is a shambles.

A. As long as I was able to work, life was busy and bearable, but a ruptured appendix operation finished that period of my life. Since then life has been drifting on with no meaning.

I'm upset and angry with myself but seem to be powerless to change. Perhaps you have suggestions that would set me back on the right path?

A. Common sense dictates that you do what every normal human being must do, which is to take life just as it is and assume charge of it. Don't let yourself be pushed around by past events.

Take the now situation and do what you can with it. Take charge of your thoughts. "Image" yourself no longer drifting but living life with purpose, enthusiasm and love for others. And start living as if that were true, and it will be.

We have a booklet that has helped others with problems such as yours. It is entitled "The Power to Change Your Life and a copy of it is on its way to you. Anyone wishing a free copy may write to us at Box 500, Pawling, N.Y. 12564. Too much TV.

Q. My wife spends too much time watching television with our three children instead of finding creative educational things for them to do, at least part of each day. This worries as well as irritates me. Does it indicate that she is not really equipped to rear children? How can I help her, and what can I do?

A. It appears that television has become the baby-sitter and chief source of recreation in many homes. Perhaps your wife is taking this easy way of keeping the children—and herself—occupied. The end result could be mental and physical laziness for her and the children.

How can you help? Well, you might start by setting a good example. Invent some "fun" things for the whole family to do on your days off. Help each one develop a hobby.

Together with your wife make a list of assigned chores for the children. And see to it they are accomplished. You and your family will be happier when everyone has constructive things—including chores—to do.

ASCS news

AERIAL PHOTOS

Aerial photos can be ordered through the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) office, according to Franklin A. Gennin, executive director of the Pearl River-Hancock County Office. County ASCS personnel will make the order forms available to interested persons and will also assist in identifying photograph numbers. These photos, showing a producer's land, can be ordered in various sizes and scales. A 24" by 24" enlargement in a 660 scale will show 4 sections of land and fringe areas. A similar enlargement in a 1320 scale will show 20-25 sections. An enlargement of this size will cost $8.00.

Producers interested in obtaining an aerial photo of their farm should contact the office for further information.

ACREAGE REPORTS DUE

Pearl River County farmers who have not filed an acreage report with the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service have until July 15 to do so, according to Franklin A. Gennin, county executive director of the Pearl River-Hancock County ASCS Office.

The acreage reports will be used to determine compliance with farm programs and to protect 1983 crop acreage bases.

Program participants are required to report the actual planted acreage on a field-by-field basis. Many farmers in the county have already reported fall-seeded and spring-seeded crops. "These farmers will be eligible for price support loans, target prices and other program benefits," Gennin said.

Farmers who did not sign up for the acreage reduction program also could benefit by certifying their planted acres because the 1983 base acres will be based on the certified 1982 acreage, he said.

ASCS will randomly check farms to verify that the acreage reports are accurate and also provide aerial photographs for farmers to identify their fields. To be sure reports are accurate and avoid unnecessary worry over the loss of program benefits, farmers may request measurement service. The cost varies according to the acreage to be measured and the measurements are guaranteed for the crop year. "All farmers are urged to file an acreage report with our office before the July 15 deadline," the ASCS official said. The office is open between 8:00 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

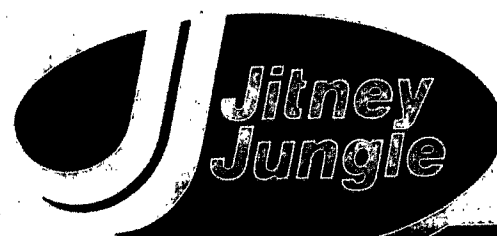

ASSISTANCE AVAILABLE

Are you losing excessive amounts of soil from your farm through erosion? If so, perhaps you need to carry out a soil or water conservation practice on your farm. The Agricultural Conservation Program, administered by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, may be the program through which financial help is available.

Franklin A. Gennin, county executive director of the Pearl River-Hancock County ASCS Office, explains that the Agricultural Conservation Program is designed to conserve soil and water resources for now and future generations. The program provides cost-share assistance to farmers to perform needed soil and water conservation practices on their farms. These practices provide benefits to everybody by improving water quality.

SKY CRANE—Mississippi Army National Guardsmen load a tractor with a mower in the "pod" of a CH-54 "Sky Crane" during a training exercise at Camp Shelby near Wiggins. The 23,000-pound helicopter is 84 feet long and 26 feet tall. Its turbine engines are capable of generating 9,000 horse power. The aircraft will carry 22,000 pounds and 48 soldiers can be airlifted inside the cargo area. The "Sky Crane" shown here belongs to the 2348th Transportation Company of Meridian, commanded by Major Milton Stamper. (Photo by Staff Sergeant Willie Floyd Jones.)

State Bar seeking judicial pay hikes

A resolution adopted unanimously at the annual business session of the Mississippi State Bar Association urges the governor and the legislature to consider state judge pay raises during 1963 sessions of the Mississippi Legislature. The resolution was adopted at the annual meeting of the Mississippi State Bar recently concluded in Biloxi. The resolution stated that the judges of the county, circuit, chancery, and supreme courts of the state have not received a raise in salary in the past five years and presently the judges do not receive compensation commensurate with their responsibilities. Accordingly, the bar recommends that "it would be in the best interest of the citizens of the State of Mississippi" that judges be paid salaries sufficient to the judges of the county, attract to the bench persons of high caliber, with talents equal to their duties. The resolution, which was adopted with no dissenting votes, was the result of the bar's concern that no pay increase was awarded during the recent 1962 session of the Mississippi Legislature. The Mississippi State Bar is a statewide professional association composed of all of Mississippi's 4,200 attorneys and judges.

McGohee maintains academy certification

Dr. Helen G. McGohee of Waveland has completed continuing education requirements to retain active membership in the American Academy of Family Physicians, the national association of family doctors. The Academy formerly was called the American Academy of General Practice. The requirements call for members to complete a minimum of 150 hours of accredited continuing medical study every three years. Members become eligible for re-election at the end of the third year following their election to membership. The Academy, the country's second largest national medical association, was the first national medical group to require members to keep up with medical progress.

Dr. McGohee's continuing education was completed through the Academy, founded in 1947 and headquartered in Kansas City, Mo. It was instrumental in the establishment of a new primary specialty in family practice in 1960. The new specialty is expected to increase the numbers of family physicians available to serve the public in the future. The Academy's continuing education program is the foundation of eligibility for family doctors now in practice who apply for certification in the new specialty.

Utility executive explores acid rain controversy

ALVIN W. VOGTLE
Noting that the scientific community holds widely differing views on the causes and effects of acid rain, Southern Company President Alvin W. Vogtle, Jr., said today that "rushing to regulate now would be the same as asking the public to sign a blank check in return for a question mark."

In an address to the Southeastern Conference on Acid Rain, Vogtle said, however, that the cloud of uncertainty which surrounds the acid rain issue must not become an excuse for indefinite delay. He called on Congress to accelerate to five years—with full funding—the 10-year acid rain study it approved in 1980.

Following are several excerpts from Vogtle's address:—Speaking for The Southern Company and the Southern electric system, I will make this clear and simple statement—we are not in the business of endangering human health or of creating an unfit environment. And we never will be.

—In fact, I'll go further. We of the Southern electric system will continue to cooperate in every way possible to determine whether there is a health or environmental hazard directly related to emissions from our power plants. And if there should prove to be such a hazard, we will bend every effort to find an effective remedy and put it to work.
—It would be a disservice if we pretend that the task is simple. I emphasize this because I've seen articles which treat environmental issues as if they were simple. The public, we are told, wants clean air and water. Well, of course the public wants clean air and water.

But the public also wants lower taxes, more industry and new job opportunities, less inflation, and lower electric bills. And, as you and I know, we cannot have more stringent controls on power plants without the cost showing up in higher electric bills.
—That's why we must accept three difficult tasks. We must learn more about acid rain. We must define for the public the choices and costs indicated by what we learn. And we must recommend—to both the public and the government—policies that will achieve the best balance between goals and costs.
—To a layman like myself, the differing views expressed by the scientific community make one thing clear—we do not know enough about the relationship between sulfur emissions and acid rain.
—For example, there is the testimony given last month before the Environment and Public Works Committee of the United States Senate. At this hearing, Dr. Volker Mohnen, director of the Atmospheric Sciences Research Center, said that a reduction in sulfur dioxide emissions would not yield an equal reduction—and might not yield any reduction—in acid rain in the eastern United States. Then a spokesman for the Environmental Defense Fund said reductions in sulfur emissions will lead to nearly comparable reductions in acid deposition in the Northeast.
—When Ph.D.s disagree, what's a poor layman to do?

There is a commonsense answer that every layman can understand. The patient must be persistent. Wait for clear answers—but keep watching to ensure that the search is diligently pursued.
—But how long should we wait? That's the troubling question raised by those sincerely concerned by those who believe that grave harm may be continuing while researchers pursue their investigations. And I'll not deny it's a valid question. We cannot wait forever. Our natural inclination to avoid choice amid such a cloud of uncertainty must not become an excuse for indefinite delay. Would it seem unreasonable, then, to limit the delay to five years?
—I didn't pick that five-year figure at random. As you know, the Congress established a 10-year study program in 1980. And there's a proposal going through the committee process right now to speed up that study program, to cut it to five years, and to focus on the issues most crucial to formulating policy. We in the Southern electric system fully support this move to accelerate both the funding and the work of that study program. And I believe this support is widespread throughout the electric utility industry.
—There's a simple principle of economic life that every American understands and accepts. The price paid should bear some reasonable relation to the value received. Let us assume that after this period of investigation—and let's put that in the words of the song, "let's make a deal"—we'll have some concrete proposals to bring before the public. And that's about all we can expect. We'll have to make a deal with those proposals. And we'll have to make a deal with those proposals by all segments of the public. By young voters, by retired citizens, by industry, by everyone who will have to pay part of the price. To get that broad support, we must be able to explain exactly what the nature of the problem is and exactly what people can expect in return for paying the price.

—Research people in our company have studied carefully one of the proposals now before the Congress—Senate bill 1706, or "the Mitchell bill," as it is called. As nearly as we can estimate now, the cost to the Southern electric system of complying with this bill's provisions would be at least $845 million residential customer's electric bill.
—That estimate was not cooked up casually. It was calculated carefully—because we need estimates that cover every contingency as accurately as possible for our own advance planning. Even so, our research people found it necessary to qualify their estimate by saying that

County Agent's Notes

CROP SURVEY

How many acres will go into crop production this season? How many livestock are on hand?

These are the kinds of questions farmers need answers to for future marketing purposes. This kind of information also helps inform buyers, traders and those who make farm policy about what to expect from agriculture this year.

A nationwide mid-year farm survey that includes Hancock County is under way to determine this information. You may be one of the farmers who received questionnaires from the Mississippi Crop and Livestock Reporting Service.

If so, your cooperation in the survey is the key in making dependable crop and livestock estimates. Low crop prices, tight credit, high interest rates and rising production costs are weighing heavily on farmer's plans. This shows the need for crop and livestock information you can count on.

If you received a questionnaire and haven't returned it, I urge you to do so as soon as possible. Fill it out as completely as possible so the Crop and Livestock Reporting Service will have the best information available to make estimates.

Your answers and the responses of others will be compiled into state and national estimates which will be published in late June by the USDA Crop Reporting Board.

STOP SOYBEAN WEEDS

How well your postemergence weed control program works has a lot to do with what kind of soybean crop you make. Broadleaf weeds that escape preemergence herbicides must be stopped in the first four weeks, or yields will be lower no matter what you do later.

In most cases, treatment should begin two or three weeks after planting. Try to get sicklepod, cocklebur and morningglory before they reach three inches high. Look at the leaf stage and start control when most weeds are no further along than the first true leaf stage.

Many other considerations must go into effective weed control programs. Contact our office for more information. (Source: Dr. Wayne Jordan)

FARMWEEK

Pick-your-own fruit and vegetable operations may not be your idea of big-time farming, but some landowners are having good success with the venture. The June 28 Farmweek program highlights several pick-your-own operations in the state and how both landowners and consumers benefit from the arrangement. Reporter James Booth has the story.

TOUGH TIME FOR GRASS

In talking to farmers and in looking at pastures in Hancock County, it's apparent that some of our summer perennials are in really tough shape.

The unusually dry summers of 1980 and 1981 followed by the severe cold last January weakened many fields of bahiagrass, and other mixed grasses and legumes.

Cool season legumes such as white and red clover suffered in particular. Even though these legumes normally regenerate each year on their own, many stands have been lost and new seedlings have failed.

Bermudagrass fields also lost plants from last winter's cold. It will take some time for these fields to recover. In some fields, more plants or seed may be needed.

When desired plants are lost to these conditions, mother nature has a way of filling up the open space with something green. Unfortunately, the "green" often is weeds that not only aren't preferred by cattle, but also compete for light, moisture and fertilizer.

You can do several things to help the problem. A pasture clipper to remove rugged weeds is one. An application of 2,4-D or Weedmaster may be needed for the hard-to-control weeds.

Make sure lime and fertility needs are met, and in some fields more seed may be needed.
